Specification

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: the specification does not provide antecedent basis for the step in claim 5 of blood flowing into the 1st opening and not out of said 2nd opening. The specification seems to provide for blood to flow into the first and out the 2nd. Clarification and/or correction is required.

For the purposes of applying art, the examiner is considering the actual claim language to be in error and will apply art as if the claim stipulates that the blood flows in to the 1st and out the 2nd opening.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b0) as being anticipated by Li-6350274.

Li discloses a device as shown in fig. 1 wherein an elongate member 11 has a distal opening 40 and a proximal opening through which element 22 extends. The distal end of a closure or seal element 13 is distal of the distal opening as shown in fig. 1. In use, the elongate member is advanced until blood is seen out the proximal end coming from blood entering into hole 42. Then the elongate member is retracted until the blood ceases indicating that the distal end of the elongate member is even with the vessel wall. Then tube 11 is retracted leaving the closure seal 13 in place in the needle tract through the vessel wall. The occlusive seal member is expandable and absorbable. See col. 9 line 66-col. 10 line 3 and claim 8.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Zhu-2002/0072767.

Zhu discloses a device having an elongated member 86 having a plurality of distal openings 92 through the sidewall and in communication with the proximal opening 90. As shown in fig. 6, distal to the 2nd distal openings 92 is a closure seal 80 which is gelfoam, both expandable and absorbable. See paragraph 70.

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The use of the phrase "this invention relates to" should be deleted, and the word "comprises" should be changed to includes, for example.
